NPWH has supported Women’s Health Nurse Practitioners and the patients they serve for 40 years. Take a look back at our history of caring for women.

1980's

Members

- '80 20 NPs from Planned Parenthood affiliates across the country disagree with the organization developing nursing certifications come together to form The National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Family Planning (NANPFP) with a mission “to assure accessible, quality family planning services and reproductive freedom.”

- '81 Writes bylaws and sets organizational goals:
  - Advocate for the nurse practitioner role
  - Be a clearinghouse for nurse practitioner problems
  - Offer continuing education
  - Provide peer support
  - Act as a resource for clinicians

- '86 Working to preserve access to NP education, protesting ANA’s plans to discontinue approval of certificate nurse practitioner programs

- '88 Members vote to change name to The National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Reproductive Health (NANPRH) to reflects broadened membership and focus

- '89 Susan Wysocki becomes first Executive Director. NANPRH moves headquarters to Washington, DC

1990's

- '92 Helps establish the right of NPs to insert and remove sub-dermal contraceptives

- '93 Files suit with other organizations against the “Gag Rule” which prohibits providers from honoring a client’s request for abortion information

- '93 Publishes first Standards of Practice for the Education and Utilization of Women’s Health Nurse Practitioners

- '95 NANPRH Council on Accreditation approves 8th WHNP education program

- '97 Helps pass medicare reimbursement for NPs into law

- '98 First National Conference: Women’s Health Care in the New Millennium

- '99 Members vote to change name to the National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women’s Health (NPWH)

2000's

- '01 Works with AWHONN to update the Women’s Health Nurse Practitioner: Standards for Practice and Education
NPWH’s CE Approval Program approves 50 programs and self-study offerings. Certificates are issued to nearly 4,000 NPs

Accreditation Council approves first masters’ WHNP program at Emory University

Co-sponsors the March for Women’s Lives. One million marchers participate on the National Mall

Joins other nursing organizations urging Congress to address national shortage of nurses

Represents nursing women's health providers in a summit with First Lady Michelle Obama

Launches the Inspiration in Women’s Health Award

Participates in Capitol Hill briefings on women’s mental health issues, care coordination, and continence issues.

2010’s

Creates a searchable database of NPs to help patients find NP providers

Advocates for choice in reproductive health at the FDA Office of Women’s Health

Gay Johnson becomes second CEO

Joins ACOG Council on Patient Safety as a full voting member

Joins ACOG Council on Maternal Mortality and AANP NP Roundtable

Holds the first Women’s Sexual Health Course for NPs, the only continuing education on women's sexual health available for NPs

Launches the Well Women Visit mobile app for clinicians

Holds first “Healthy at Any Age” meeting, which eventually becomes the BOlder Women’s Health Coalition

Publishes a position statement on Healthcare for Transgender and Gender Nonconforming Individuals

Successfully advocates for the retaining of co-testing as the preferred method of cervical cancer screening with the United States Preventive Services Task Force

Launches H.E.R. Hub, a tool for clinicians to educate patients on women's health issues

Heather L. Maurer becomes third CEO

Launches 8th edition of Women's Health Nurse Practitioner: Guidelines for Practice and Education